Bear's Mill offers an exciting place to experience a bit of history in a strikingly beautiful setting. Built in 1849, the Mill has been on the National Register of Historic Places since 1975. It is one of the few operating water-powered gristmills in Ohio today. Grain is still ground into flours and meals using French buhr stones powered by water from the Greenville Creek. Visitors can take a free self-guided tour of the mill, shop at the Mill Store and Art Gallery, and enjoy a walk along a peaceful stretch of creekside woodlands in the 35 acres surrounding the mill. The grounds also offer public paddling access to Greenville Creek for canoe and kayak enthusiasts.
